1500 B.C.—A.D. 1945

One of the oldest medical treatises in existence, the papyrus Ebers, written about 1500 B.C., contains a 'Book of the Banishing of Pain'. From this papyrus we learn that the ancient Egyptians were familiar with many of the drugs we use to-day, that they were skilled in the preparation of pills and ointments and injections, and that they wrote minutely detailed prescriptions for the treatment of many of the ills which still afflict mankind. One of their prescriptions contains 35 different ingredients.

We have no evidence as to its efficacy, but those ancient priest-doctors were at least working in the right direction, for one of the most recent discoveries of medical science is the fact that an infinitesimal quantity of a powerful drug will do the work of a large dose if it is backed up by the right combination of other drugs in the right proportions.

Take 'Cogene' for example. 'Cogene' is a scientific combination of four separate drugs, in tablet form, each of proved worth in the relief of pain. Because each of these drugs is present in only a minute quantity 'Cogene' is non-habit forming and produces no harmful after-effects; yet will relieve the most harassing nerve pain far more rapidly than a single drug could do. That is why doctors prescribe 'Cogene'. It is sold by all chemists at 1/1½d. a tube.

Never forget, though, that while 'Cogene' will relieve the pain, it cannot remove the cause of the pain: only a doctor or a dentist can do that.

JOURNAL OF THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF NURSING

Nursing Times

VOL. XLI No. 30 SATURDAY, JULY 28, 1945

EDITOR: MISS K. F. ARMSTRONG, S.R.N., S.C.M., DIPLOMA IN NURSING, LONDON UNIVERSITY

Holding War-Time Gains

ONE of the many fields of nursing work which has absorbed an increasing number of State-registered nurses during the war is industrial nursing, and among the questions which the layman, the member of Parliament and the harrassed hospital administrator are asking is whether these nurses would not be doing more vital work if they returned to the hospitals which are short of nursing staff and left the ambulance rooms in the factories in the hands of first aid workers, who are experienced in tying up cuts and attending to minor injuries. This line of argument completely overlooks the fact that the " ambulance room " in the hands of adequately qualified industrial medical officer and nurse becomes much more than an ambulance room : it becomes a health centre in the strict sense of the words.

Even in the matter of tying up small cuts and dealing with minor injuries, the use of first class techniques is no matter of minor importance. For the sepsis rate depends on the standard of the work done, and on the sepsis rate in the factories, depends the work of the local hospital out-patient and in-patient departments, as well as the number of hours lost from work and the number of cases of compensation. The doctor and nurse who prevent a hand from becoming septic may well save a hospital many hours of work : the importance of preventing sepsis rather than curing it has been amply demonstrated in the medical records of many factories and also in those of the R.A.M.C., on an unprecedented scale, recently. The figures from this report prove the case: "Minor accidents and ailments have, as might be expected, increased during the fourth year of war. A monthly average of several thousand cases received treatment in the First Aid Room. It would appear that employees generally are becoming health conscious and are making more and more use of the first aid room facilities ; early attention to their minor accidents and ailments has resulted in a marked reduction of sepsis and also of reportable accidents. Taking the figure for the number of reportable accidents—those causing at least three days absence—as 100 in 1941, the relative figure for 1942 was 81, and for 1943 only 55."* This is practically a 50 per cent. fall, but the report goes on to point out that the number of employees had increased and many women had replaced men.

Quite apart from the sepsis rate, with a good dressing and treatment technique, the worker can often go safely back to the machine, when without adequate treatment he would have been absent from work, or working at the risk of further injury. The article on page 486 and 487 of this issue gives an example of a case in point. Sepsis is only one angle of the problem. There is the danger of dressings which catch in machinery or treatments which do not ensure adequate protection and rest to the injured part.

However, the prevention of sepsis is a factor which can be measured. It has shown again and again in ambulance room records where these have been kept. Even where there are no satisfactory records, there is a record of the number of compensation cases. For the setting up of an adequate industrial health service has resulted in a decrease in the number of claims, as a very large number have always in the past arisen from the crippling effects of sepsis, particularly when it affects fingers and hands.

Further, if there is a medical officer and nurse with industrial training, they will appreciate the value of records and will keep them satisfactorily. This is of major importance in all research into the incidence of industrial disease : it is in the minor symptoms reported by employees from a certain department that the early signs of the incidence of industrial disease in connection with new and toxic processes of manufacture are likely to be detected, before serious injury to the worker's health has resulted. For example, in one factory a number of employees reported acne of the face over the cheek bones, followed by the deaths of two workers from chlorinated naphthalene poisoning : the toxic substance was not used in the department from which the cases came, but leaked into it from the exhaust shaft from another room that had become blocked. The deaths might have been prevented had the record system shown a large number of similar but minor symptoms arising suddenly in one department.

The need for the State-registered nurse will be even greater in industry in the post-war world. There were already signs at Southport that industrial nurses were meeting in their departments the men who have suffered from psychological trauma as a result of their war-time experiences, and who, unless their position is appreciated and met with the help that they need, will not be successfully rehabilitated, and may well drift into our mental hospitals. Apart from this there are the many cases of peptic ulcer, the numerous amputees and the cases of wounded men, who are likely to need advice and careful watching which can well be given within the factory. Unless modern drugs have completely changed the outlook for the man with a septic com-

There is, however, a more important factor. The industrial health department in the factory should be a centre for health teaching, and this teaching cannot be given satisfactorily unless there is a complete health team, consisting of both industrial medical officer and industrial nurse with special trianing for the work. Large numbers of nurses have taken this special training but many are working without it. It is invaluable in converting the more curative outlook of the hospital world into the preventive outlook, which the factory needs if illness and accident are to be prevented rather than cured— the outlook which makes the doctor and nurse try to seek out the causes of industrial ill-health, such as lack of ventilation, exposure to glare, working without sufficient light, exposure to toxic substances. To take industrial nurses, who have this outlook and the knowledge and experience which lies behind it from the factories cannot but greatly increase the amount of work for the hospitals. To check the training of fresh entrants into this field would mean relinquishing the gains made in the field of industrial health during the war, for the service can only be maintained at its present level by a constant supply of properly qualified entrants.

Meanwhile we may ask how it is that the industrial nursing field has attracted so many entrants during the war. Is it not a fact that it is one of the few fields available to the immobile State-registered nurse, with home responsibilities? This is a question which the hospital authorities should consider. Are they since they are now suffering from shortage of staff, willing to meet the trained nurse with elderly parents or other dependants, who would gladly work in hospital if she could do so and remain non-resident, even though this meant perhaps a divided shift? The non-resident allowance of the Rushcliffe Scale does not encourage the nurse in this course, but if the hospitals were willing to do it, might it not help to meet the present shortage?

RECOMMENDATION IN FORCE

Do all health visitors, school nurses and tuberculosis visitors know the following Rushcliffe recommendation? "We recommend that authorities employing nurses in public health services shall grant such staff special paid leave at intervals not exceeding five years to attend post-certificate refresher courses which are approved by the appropriate Government Department as suitable for the category of staff concerned. The employing authority shall pay the tuition fees and travelling expenses of nurses taking the course, except in the case of residential school nurses, who are entitled to maintenance in addition to their resident salary and for whose board and lodging, therefore, the employing authority shall pay while they are undergoing the course." This recommendation (paragraph 57, page 18, second report) has resulted in the re-establishment of such refresher courses by the Royal College of Nursing and the Women Public Health Officers Association. Two College courses have already taken place, since the war-time cancellations, one at headquarters in May, and the other at Oxford during the last two weeks. They have been most successful and, as they are the first of their kind arranged by the College since the recommendations of the Rushcliffe Committee came into force, there must be many who are anxious to reap the benefit of them.

Unfortunately the Taylor Committee made no similar recommendation, but nevertheless a similar course has been held at College headquarters in Edinburgh and was well attended. Although the authorities have not had the suggestion from the Taylor Committee that they shall give special leave of absence and pay the fees and travelling expenses of public health nurses who attended, we understand that the local authorities did do this to a large extent and we hope the practice will spread. For the health visitor, as a health teacher, really needs her period of annual leave and it is not suitable for her to sacrifice two weeks of it for refresher courses, much as she may value the stimulus they yield.

A further course is planned to take place in Newcastle from September 8 to 22. This centre of interest in children, where the first University Chair in Child Health was set up, is a very appropriate Mecca for health visitors, school nurses, and tuberculosis visitors from Northern England and Southern Scotland. The full programme will appear next week but meanwhile our readers will like to know that Professor J. C. Spence, M.C., M.D., who occupies the Chair of Child Health, is himself giving the inaugural address on "Child Health and its Relation to Family Life and Institutional Life," and will lecture on "Social Work in a Children's Clinic." The programme is full of lectures on modern treatment and present day problems and should attract many who feel the need for a refresher course after long years of war-work in the health field, or because they are returning to this work after several years in one of the Nursing Services of the Crown—for demobilization has already freed some members of the nursing profession for a return to their previous employment.

Topical Notes

Queen's Sisters

THE decision of the Council of the Queen's Institute of District Nursing that a Queen's nurse shall now be called "sister" (see page 492) will be welcomed by all. The additional teaching and training she receives, the wide and far-reaching responsibilities she bears, and the possibilities which lie at hand for her to extend her services and to become a great teacher of wholesome and healthy living, make her well worthy of the increased status. The fact that the Queen's sister has become a familiar and welcome figure in almost every town and village must surely also be of great value to recruitment.

By Their Good Works

SHE has achieved a good name amongst patients and doctors alike, and justly so. In this the sixth year of war, midwives working in connection with the Queen's Institute at the 85,153 cases at which they acted as midwives, had the lowest maternal mortality on record—one in 1,000 live births. This is even lower than the figure quoted by Dr. Eardley Holland at a recent Chadwick Lecture; 1.2 per 1,000, the rate for the 9,000 cases Queen's nurses attended a year, was half the National figure which itself has been halved since 1933.

Nursing Act Nonsense

THE nursing profession will welcome the strong support which the Lancet gave last week to its objection to the inclusion of "Christian Science nurses" among those who are entitled to use the title "nurse," pointing out, as we did in our issue that it nullifies the principle of the Nurses Act, 1943, which was the protection of the public from unqualified nursing. The Lancet says that this "makes nonsense of the whole attempt to safeguard the title 'nurse.' It is as though the law were to say that people allowed to use the title of 'doctor' must be those who hold a medical degree—and faith healers. The intention of medical registration was to enable the public to distinguish between practitioners who had had a recognized medical education and those who had not; and the public is surely justified in expecting that the word nurse should be defined according to similar principles." The Royal Colleges of Surgeons, of Physicians and of Gynaecologists and Obstetricians also support the nursing profession on this matter. We hope the new House of Commons will take the necessary action to protect both the public and the profession. There will be 30 days in which they can take action, but members will be brow-beaten unless they know the facts. These persons will not be allowed to call themselves State-registered nurses nor enrolled assistant nurses, and can neither register nor enrol with the General Nursing Council. They may call themselves Christian Science nurses and may therefore be addressed as "nurse."

Humanity in the Factory

A TESTIMONY to the value of rest-breaks for the factory worker appears in an article, "Factory under Fire," on the war record of Carreras Ltd., by E. M. Pepperell, in Industrial Welfare and Personnel Management (May-June, 1945). Within a few days of the beginning of the flying bomb attacks a rest-break scheme was arranged at the Bernhard Baron Convalescent Home at Brighton, and in spite of the difficulty of releasing staff, both supervisors and workers were quick to appreciate its value. When the V2 attacks ended, holiday weeks were arranged, at a moderate charge. There is no doubt that workers gain both physically and mentally from these breaks and the consideration and co-operation which enabled them to take place have given an added flavour of humanity to what used to be thought the hard impersonality of the twentieth century factory.

THIS WEEK

The Royal College of Nursing will be closed from August 6—August 27 inclusive.

A Happy Occasion

THE Council for the Provision of Rest Breaks Houses for Nurses and Midwives had the honour on Thursday last, July 19, of welcoming Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Kent, accompanied by the Lady Rachel Davison and the Lord Herbert, to the Bedford Hotel, Buxton. The Duchess was received by the Countess of Radnor, chairman of the Council and some of its members were presented to her, as well as the chairman and secretary of the Railway Convalescent Homes, who so generously lent the hotel for the duration of the war in Europe and for six months afterwards. The Royal party were shown over part of the hotel, including some of the bedrooms and the kitchens. They were keenly interested in all that they saw and fully realised the benefit that nurses and midwives who stay in the hotel must derive from having a complete rest in such pleasant and comfortable surroundings. During the time that tea was being served Her Royal Highness most kindly received some of the nurses and midwives present and talked with them about their work.

The Halford Victory Scholarships

THE winners of the 40 Victory Travelling Scholarships for Ward and Departmental Sisters are announced in the report of the Meeting of Council on July 19 (see page 490). The winners, to whom we offer our heartiest congratulations, were selected by the Ward and Departmental Groups within the Branches, of which there are now 36. Additional scholarships were awarded to very large groups. Each sister will visit hospitals for two weeks and spend two weeks holiday-making, having £50 for her expenses during the four weeks. We hope that great profit will result from this opportunity for ward sisters, which comes as a welcome recognition of their war-time work from the Halford Bequest, through the kind of interest Mr. J. P. Mitchelhill.

Behind Closed Doors

THE Royal College of Nursing will be closed this summer, for the first time in its history, for three weeks from August 6 to August 27. The Council decided to take this step to permit the staff, during the holiday period, to get the clerical work more up-to-date. The General Secretary asks members to refrain from using the telephone so that work is reduced to a minimum, but advice will be given on urgent professional problems, such as matters of a legal nature and acute personal difficulties.

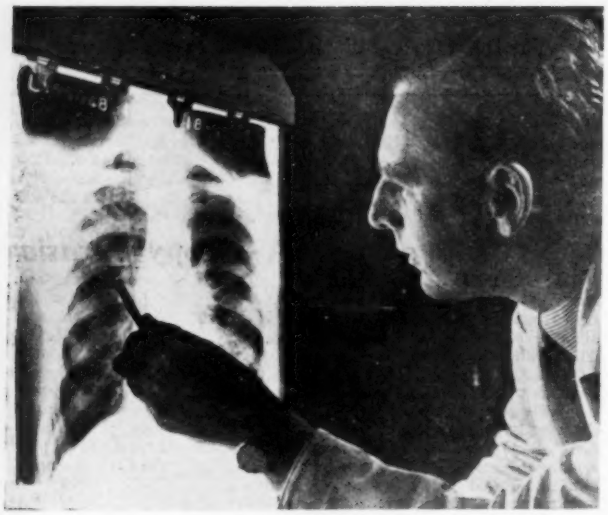
THE CONTROL OF TUBERCULOSIS IN INDUSTRY

By T. O. GARLAND, M.D., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., Principal Assistant County Medical Officer, Middlesex

A lecture given at a Conference of the Institute of Labour Management and the Public Health Section of the Royal College of Nursing, at Bristol



DISCOVERY :
Examining a film taken by the London County Council Mobile Mass Radiography Unit. The sooner treatment of tuberculosis is started the better the patient's chance of regaining health. Mass X-ray is important to early diagnosis

IT WAS a wise decision to devote a session at this conference to the control of tuberculosis in industry, for pulmonary tuberculosis remains the main killing disease of the adult industrial worker during his best working years.

In Middlesex (population, 2 million) during 1942, 717 persons between the ages of 15 and 45 died from pulmonary tuberculosis; this is a higher number than the combined deaths between these age groups in the same year of all cancers, all heart diseases, all pneumonias and all other respiratory diseases exclusive of tuberculosis.

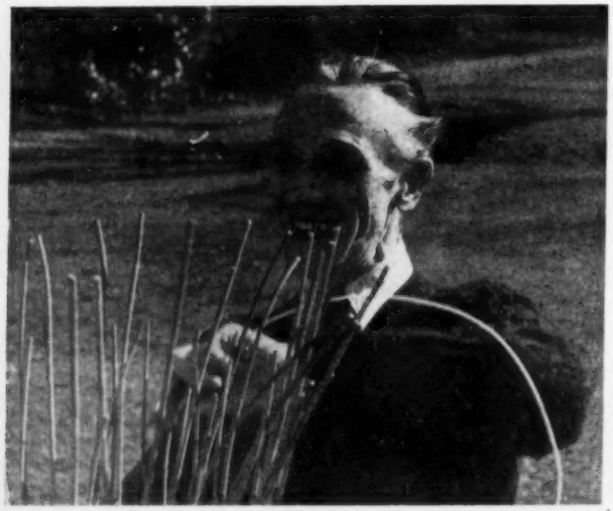
May I, before proceeding, stress the word "conference"? Tuberculosis is essentially a social disease, with a multitude of factors influencing its incidence. Control of social health problems is emphatically not a matter for doctors alone, it is a matter of doubt whether they can even lead the necessary team work. The control of tuberculosis calls for much conferring between health workers of all categories, with representatives of industrial workers, with labour managers, with employers, with architects, with politicians, teachers and a host of others. It is much to be desired that the strategically well-placed labour managers and nurses represented here to-day will make known to us their advice and will spend much future thought on this problem.

The control of any disease may for convenience be split into sections ; for to-night's conference I suggest we consider prevention, discovery, treatment and rehabilitation, with the main emphasis upon discovery and rehabilitation. Great prominence must be given to prevention in all diseases, but I am only going to spend a short time on this aspect to-night.

At many of the meetings I attend the expert tuberculosis clinicians rather tend to separate into two camps, the one stressing the purely infective factor concerned in the spread of the disease and the other stressing the environmental factor that affects resistance once infection occurs. All admit, however, that both factors are concerned and it would be disastrous, I think, at this stage when the disease is still so rife, for us to plan our preventative measures with undue emphasis on either infection or resistance factors. When the disease becomes as rare as tuberculosis is, say among cattle in Finland or Guernsey, then we should be correct to concentrate on isolating any known source of infection. We must not neglect obvious methods of isolating sources of infection to-day but, seeing that the majority of people do at some time or another meet with a primary infection by the time they are thirty, we must also pay serious attention to those factors which we believe are concerned in maintaining resistance.

To build up resistance to tuberculosis calls for the same measures as are needed to keep men and women from going sick generally.

TREATMENT :
The physio-therapist at a modern sanatorium gives exercises after operation to ensure full movement of the shoulder, girdle and arm



REHABILITATION :
The return to production must be a gradual process : basketmaking in the open-air helps a patient at Harefield Sanatorium through the earlier stages of convalescence

They are concerned with nutrition, housing, fatigue, the balance between work and recreation, anxieties and mental stress, and other matters well-known to you as affecting health. We have ample evidence that tuberculosis mounts with malnutrition, with overcrowding and slum conditions, with worry and nervous strain. Preventative measures in this field are extremely important and, within the sphere of industry, much can undoubtedly be done to prevent the ravages of tuberculosis by building up and maintaining these resistance factors. I will say something more later about isolating the highly infectious worker.

Let us now consider the very big problem of discovering the worker who has active disease in its early stages. We know that people who have had pulmonary tuberculosis can get perfectly well—do let us repeat this again and again—and we believe that the sooner treatment is started the better will be the chance of returning the patient to full or partial health. The discovery of the early case of tuberculosis has always presented difficulties, owing to the insidious character of the onset of the disease. The bacillus works for an appreciable period in secret ; only later are there signals—cough, wasting, blood-spitting, failing strength, etc. Modern radiography, however, provides a technique that can overcome this difficulty and very emphatically I would assert that mass X-ray must play an important role if we are to control tuberculosis in industry. I am far from feeling dogmatic, however, as to just how a mass X-ray unit should be used to take the maximum advantage of this technique.

Routine X-ray Examinations

X-ray will discover the early case sure enough and, if people are X-rayed sufficiently frequently we can certainly cut down the present large number of patients who never come under treatment until they are in an advanced state of disease. But note that "if"—how often must they be X-rayed ? It will be a long time before everybody can be X-rayed merely once a year, and it is open to doubt even whether it would be economic thus to occupy the great number of skilled technicians that would be needed.

It appears to me that some degree of selection is required that will ensure our catching the bulk of the cases in their early stage. For example, if everyone who has been off work for any sickness whatever for two or more days were to be X-rayed on his return to work, we would catch the very large number of cases who, when they first go down with the disease, have symptoms of so mild a character that they are labelled influenza, cold, bronchitis, etc. There would need to be many routine X-rays also ; all new entrants to industry should have an initial picture taken and perhaps all those aged 18—30 should have a yearly picture during this period, even if free from any sickness absence. All known old cases would perhaps need a six-monthly check up and likewise all home contacts of known open cases. All workers, particularly those with important Trade Union status, should understand the scheme fully, and means must be found to bring the housewives and others living and working at home within the scheme. Some broad selection of this character would enable one unit to cover sufficiently thoroughly an area far larger than would be possible if an annual X-ray of every adult were to be attempted. It would also lessen the waste of time that is apparent at present.

A Black Cloud

There are other problems of a clinical character that are arising which give us food for thought. Much healed disease is being discovered—what action are we to take in regard to these persons, if any ? The danger of increasing anxieties in certain personality types is not a small one. As the understanding of this disease increases, and particularly as it comes to be recognised that the diagnosis of tuberculosis is not necessarily a death warrant, the black cloud of fear that now obscures the horizon in this field may blow over. This cloud now prevents us getting enough nurses, robs our sanatoria of domestics, makes the factory girl state, "Even if I've got anything wrong I'd rather not know about it," and even follows the worker who has been through the mill and wishes to return to production, but who may find himself treated like an outcast and a leper.

The idea of mass X-ray has been very well supported by managements and workers in Middlesex. We have excellent co-operation from both. If this is to be maintained certain safeguards must become well established for the workers. The first one is that the initial examination is a matter purely between the worker and the doctor on the unit. It is absolutely confidential, that is to say. In actual practice we have virtually no difficulty, everyone who is advised treatment accepts it and is prepared for the clinical notes of his case to go to his own doctor or the tuberculosis officer, as the case may be, but it is our practice rigidly to adhere to the rule that no action is taken on any discovery we may make without first obtaining the consent of the person involved. No details are given to parent, employer, doctor, husband, wife or anyone else, without this consent and we announce this publicly at every meeting that may be called at every factory we go to. The other two important principles that do cause difficulty in our experience, but which, I think, are very important to establish, are : (1) that if certified as fit again by the tuberculosis officer, the person should be assured of his former job and (2) that while in receipt of treatment the person should be assured of payment that will enable him and his family to maintain something more than a bare subsistence level. This latter principle has to some extent been acknowledged by the Government Tuberculosis Allowances Scheme, but there are certain unfortunate gaps in it, the most cruel of which is that clause which forbids an allowance to be paid to anyone whose condition is such that treatment "cannot do more than alleviate a chronic condition."

Social Complications

As far as treatment goes it is to be assumed that modern facilities, with the necessary beds, will eventually be available. They are far from being available to-day. But there are important social complications of treatment which are consequent on the important principle of rest, which remains the corner stone of treatment. Almost more than any other type of patient the tuberculosis one is made to rest, usually for very long periods. He has to renounce all activities and responsibilities and this tends to produce someone whom it is very difficult to get started again. This is a problem not confined to tuberculosis patients, of course, it is a common one to any prolonged incapacitating condition, it is the problem of convalescence, and opens up that fascinating field that has come to be called "rehabilitation."

People mean different things by rehabilitation, but let us agree to-day that it is completed when the patient is once more back in production and feels he can once more carry the responsibilities of ordinary life. This is something very big for the person who has been ill for a long time and may take years. It is pre-eminently in this field that those of you gathered here to-day must play a major part if any successful scheme is to be operated. In the past the prospect for the tuberculous person has too often been the dump heap of unemployment, or back to industry and a breakdown. This is a terrible prospect for patients and should not, and need not, be tolerated.

A Bugbear Defeated

Generally speaking, the return to production for these patients must be a very gradual process, and the old slogan of the industrialist that a man must be able to do a full day's work or else he is no good to him, is particularly damaging to them. They, in particular, need to struggle back to work along a very gentle gradient of shorter hours and other favoured conditions. Industry is so complex to-day that I feel, once the will is there, practically all workers capable of work at all, even only for a few hours a day, can find their niche—most of them, too, at their former employment or in close association with it. The old bugbear of part-time work was thoroughly defeated for war-time exigencies, and should not be allowed again to sabotage our plans for a happy peace-time.

It is necessary that part-time work should be subsidized in some way to enable the worker to maintain proper standards. This principle is already recognized by the present allowance scheme which authorizes part of the full allowance to be continued for a time to those who return to part-time work. It is clearly more economic nationally, and more dignified and self-respecting for society to maintain persons by a small subsidy of this nature than wholly on out-relief which is the usual alternative.

It cannot be baulked, however, that fitting into industry a number of rather unstable part-timers in this way will need much painstaking effort and fundamentally much good will. But if a man or woman is fit to work if only for a few hours a day, why should that not be one of the primary liberties that we acknowledge and concede ?

There will need to be close liaison between existing tuberculosis dispensary organisations and industry. I imagine that ultimately all dispensaries will include upon their staff, welfare officers, as they all now do in Middlesex, and that it will be these officers, in conjunction with the labour managers, welfare officers, and nurses

THE HEALTH VISITOR'S "CASE LOAD"*

By E. WESTWATER, Superintendent Health Visitor, Warwickshire County Coun

A FEW months ago I was honoured with a request from the Joint Consultative Council of Health Visitors' Organizations to write a paper on a "Model Health Service in a Rural Area." Within the scope of the paper came remarks on the future demand and supply of health visitors as it seemed obvious that to ensure an adequate number of qualified health visitors to provide an efficient service, some standardization of the amount of work a health visitor should be expected to do must be agreed upon for the guidance of employing authorities, with regard to the number of staff to be employed. At present the number of staff employed bears no relation to the amount of work to be done and in some areas there is serious understaffing and no likelihood of increase in the number of personnel unless pressure is brought to bear.

The remarks that follow are a slightly revized form of those which appeared in the paper, as since then the Rushcliffe (Second) Report has been published giving health visitors less annual holiday than I provided for in my scheme. Health visiting is educational work; the health visitor requires more mental rest from her labours and opportunity for taking refresher courses. I based my requirements on the statistics for 1942, deducting those which applied to the Boroughs and densely populated urban areas within the administrative County.

Scope of Work

Combined Duties.—Work under the following Acts and Regulations appears to meet the need for rural districts :—(a) Maternity and Child Welfare Act, 1918 ; (b) Public Health Act, 1936 ; (c) Adoption of Children (Regulation) Act, 1939 ; (d) Education Act, 1921 ; (e) Scabies Order, 1941 ; (f) Tuberculosis Regulations, 1912 and 1921 ; (g) Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 and 1938 ; (h) Regulation 33 (B). Thus her work will include :—(1) attendance at ante-natal and post-natal clinics, and visiting those patients who are not midwives' cases in their homes ; (2) visiting children under 5 years of age and thereafter as school children as required ; (3) attendance at child welfare centres and school clinics ; (4) giving health talks and demonstrations ; (5) assisting the school medical officer at school medical inspections and doing the necessary "follow-up" visits ; (6) conducting cleanliness surveys in schools and visiting the parents of defective children in their homes ; (7) supervision of foster children (including those placed for adoption) ; (8) ascertainment of scabies cases and contacts, and arranging for their treatment ; (9) ascertainment of suspected mental defectives and the supervision of mental defectives in their homes or persons under guardianship ; (10) attendance at tuberculosis dispensaries and the home visitation of notified tuberculosis cases and contacts ; (11) social work under the Venereal Disease Regulations.

This is by no means a complete list of work included in "combined duties," and other duties may consist of :—(1) attendance at ultra-violet light therapy clinics ; (2) attendance at child welfare dental sessions ; (3) attendance at school dental clinics ; (4) assisting the school oculist ; (5) almoning in respect of maternity home and hospital accommodation ; (6) arranging for the care of children during the absence from home of the mother due to confinement or illness ; (7) supervision of home helps ; (8) in the future possibly the care of old people in their homes.

Demand and Supply

The Present Position.—The full complement of health visiting staff approved by my local authority for the whole of the County are 27 health visitors and one superintendent. Nineteen health visitors work in the rural areas mentioned previously. In May, 1943, no health visitor was off duty and there were no holidays ; 22 visiting days were possible. For that month the average time spent on the district by each health visitor was 7 days (less than 2 days per week), and the average number of visits was 22 per day ; 3 health visitors have case loads exceeding 1,500 ; 12 over 1,000 and none less than 800. I take a case load to include children under five, defective school children (approximately 28 per cent. of the school population), tuberculosis patien mental defectives and foster children, etcetera.

Recommendations for the Future.—At least 60 per cent. o health visitor's time on duty, excluding that spent on cleri work, should be spent "visiting." 40 per cent. (not more) show be spent at fixtures, for example, child welfare centres, sch medical inspections, head inspections, etcetera. Saturd mornings, 9 a.m. to 12 noon, should be free for clerical wor Thus the scheme is based on a "five day week" for "outdoor work, which in a year totals 260 days. In each year allow each member of the staff the following time off duty :— annual leave, 4 weeks (28 days) ; (2) sick leave, etcetera, estima 7 days. This totals 35 days, or 5 weeks. Therefore each memb of the staff would be on duty 47 of the 52 weeks, that is, 2 possible visiting days out of 365 ; 60 per cent. of 235 days spe visiting is 141 days, or 3 days weekly, or 6 sessions. 40 per cen of 235 days spent at fixtures is 94 days, or 2 days weekly, or sessions.

A "Working Day."—I would suggest arrival on the distri by 9.15 a.m. and leaving at 4.15 p.m., taking 1¼ hours for lunc including travelling time. Arrival at clinics should not be lat than 9 a.m. or 1.30 p.m., in order to prepare them before mothe and patients arrive. Possibly between one and two hours ea evening will be spent on clerical duties and preparation of th next day's work, and for making posters and demonstrati materials. Thus hours of duty will approximate 8 hours f 5 days, plus 3 hours on Saturdays, that is, a 43 hour week, plu travelling time, which in rural areas is considerable. Th "working week" is comparable to the time on duty spent b midwives and district nurses. Rural area health visitors have t keep their district records in their own homes and do the clerical work there. Most are on the telephone and "on call to give help and advice in their "off duty hours." So-calle "office hours" are unknown to the majority of health visitor working in rural areas.

Number of Visits.—Provided each health visitor has a car, sh can do a possible average of 22 visits per day (including ineffecti visits), making the possible number of visits per annum 3,11 Without a car the number of visits possible would be reduc to 12 to 15 daily (and may be less in bad weather), the healt visitor expending time and energy walking the roads. In th connection it would appear many local authorities are evadi the requirements of the Rushcliffe Report to provide cars.

Definition.—For statistical purposes I would define as a "visit each person advised in the place visited and not the number "households," etcetera, visited ; for example, a tuberculo father, one expectant mother and children ages 9, 6 and 2 yea in a house would be analysed as :—"tuberculosis visit—1 ante-natal visit—1 ; school children—2 ; children 1-5 years—1, giving a total of five visits in that household. Casual meetin in the street and doorstep visits should not be reckoned a "effective" visits, but a note of them should be made on th respective record cards. Applying this reasoning to the numb of 1942 births in the rural areas of the County, and taking th figure as the number on which to calculate the pre-school (0-5 years) and school (5-15 years) populations of the future, togeth with other 1942 "returns" on the various classifications of wo done the following figures result :—

	No. of visits.
Maternity and Child Welfare. (Total children 0-5 years—17,780).
1942 Births = 3,556, to whom 11 monthly visits should be paid	39,116
Children 1-5 years = 3,556 × 4 = 14,224 quarterly visits to be paid	56,896
Ante-Natal Visits (almoning, "called in," "found")	784
Child Life Protection—93 cases, should have monthly visits	1,116
Total Annual Visits	97,91

Paper read at a meeting of the Superintendent Health Visitors' group of Women Public Health Officers' Association in London, November 25, 1944.

		No. of Visits
Brought forward		97,912
School Medical Service.
Children 5-15 years (3,556 1942 births × 10) =35,560. 20 per cent. found with defect at School Medical Inspection and required follow-up visits	7,112
12 per cent. of this number at further visits ...	852
8 per cent. of total school population (×3) examined once a term at head inspection, found "lousy" and should be visited ...	8,535
20 per cent. of this 8 per cent. required re-visits	1,707
Total school "defect" visits (approximately 50 per cent. of the school population)		18,206
Tuberculosis Visiting.
735 cases × quarterly visits (some may be monthly and some half-yearly)	2,940
Mental Defectives.
355 cases visited monthly, quarterly or half-yearly		2,140
Miscellaneous Visits.
Adoptions, home helps, immunizations, scabies, cases and contacts, neglect cases, interviews with Medical Officer of Health, Sanitary Inspector, Relieving Officer, Food Officer, Moral Welfare Workers, ectetera		3,726
		124,924

This means that 40 health visitors (as against 19), each paying 3,112 visits, would be required, and their annual visits would appear thus :—

	Total No. of visits
1. Birth notifications 90 × 11 visits =990 visits Children 1-5, 90 × 4 having quarterly visits =1,440 visits Total visits to 450 under fives	2,430
2. School Children (900) follow-up visits ...	450
(N.B.—I am providing for the health visitor in whose area the child lives to pay the necessary follow-up visits, if the child does not attend school in her area. The health visitor in whose area the school is situated should inform her appropriate colleagues by telephone of defects found among children living outside the "school area," and thus prevent overlapping of visitors.)
3. Miscellaneous cases (see below) and unclassified visits	43 cases =232
	3,112

Analysis of Case Load :—

Children 0-5		450
Defective school children (28 per cent. of school population)		232
Miscellaneous Cases	Ante-natal cases (not midwives' cases) Tuberculosis cases Child Life Protection cases M.D. Cases Home Helps	43
TOTAL		725

Adjustments.—12 per cent. of infant record cards are returned to the office after the first visit for varying reasons, chiefly "neo-natal death", "above visiting standard", "cannot trace" "here for confinement only—removed." Also several children attend day nurseries, or go to private schools on attaining school entry age, and therefore do not come under the surveillance of the health visitor. Therefore I would allocate 100 birth notifications to each health visitor and thus, by saving 12 births on each of 40 health visitors, obtain the services of 4 "relief" or "clinic" health visitors, one of whom should be "assistant superintendent" or "senior health visitor" who could deputise for the superintendent health visitor in her absence from the office, or for the deputy superintendent health visitor, where the health visiting staff exceeds 40. It is to be deprecated that professional personnel are "supervized" by clerical staff in the absence of a single-handed superintendent.

Hence the final analysis of work would read thus :—

			Total No. of visits
(a) Maternity and Child Welfare
Children 0-1, 100 less 12% =88 x 11 monthly visits =	968
Children 1-5, 400 less 12% =352 x4 visits per annum =	1,408
Total of children 0-5, 500 less 12% =	440
Case load, annual visits =			2,376
(b) School Medical Service.
Children 5-15 in area 100x10 =1,000 less 12% = 88x10 = 880 of whom 28% have "defects" =227 to whom "defect" visits approximate 50% of school population. =			440
(c) Miscellaneous Cases.
These will vary in number according to the variety of work allocated to health visitors: but generally speaking would include ante-natal visits, visits to home helps, child life protection, tuberculosis patients, mental defectives (and unclassified visits) based on this scheme approximate 43 cases =			296
Total estimated case load per health visitor
Children 0-5 =500 less 12% (actual)	440
Children 5-15 = 1,000 less 12% =880 and estimates 28% of total ... ... =	227
Miscellaneous cases ... ... =	43
Estimated grand total 1,543, actual total =	710
Total annual visits			3,112

The monthly and annual reports from health visitors should be carefully scanned in order to note any changes, for example, new housing areas will doubtless bring a rise in the birth rate, and slum clearance orders, movement of that element of the population to new surroundings. Hence, from time to time, each district will need adjustment, so that all members of the staff undertake an equal share of the work, having regard to the distribution of population and the mileage to be covered. In sparsely populated areas the case load should be as low as 500, and for the health visitor in the more populous areas about 800. I consider this scheme for reckoning a "case load" practical and only a step towards giving efficient service. It is far from being "utopian" and will need revision as more trained staff become available when the case load suggested can be further reduced.

Book Reviews

UTILITY BABY.—By Dale Collins (Herbert Jenkins Limited, 3, Duke of York Street, St. James, S.W.1.; price 7s. 6d.)

This little book is about the birth of a baby in the fifth year of the war, and covers the months from the beginning of pregnancy to the child's Christening. It is the simple tale of the hopes and fears of a young married couple who want a baby, but are apprehensive about its birth in war-time. The Mr. and Mrs. Brown of the story are the Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Jones or Smith who are met daily in routine midwifery work. It is gratifying that they find the maternity hospital efficient and pleasant, and the nursing staff full of common-sense and human kindness. The illustrations are appropriate and amusing, and the book is suitable for a couple of hours light reading at bed-time.

Ideas have Legs

By Peter Howard. (Frederick Muller, 7s. 6d.)

An interesting book about the battle for control in industry ; the author points out that this is a battle not between left and right, labour and management, but between selfishness and unselfishness.

What the College is Doing

Points of Interest from the Council Meeting on July

THE new council met for the first time on Thursday, July 19, and transacted a great deal of business. In opening the proceedings, Miss D. S. Coode, Chairman, welcomed the newly-elected members present, Miss C. E. Anderson, Miss S. C. Bovill, Miss I. I. Clieve and Miss H. Cook, and proposed a hearty vote of thanks to the retiring members, Miss G. Bremner, Miss D. A. Lane, Miss E. E. P. MacManus, Miss A. Milligan and Miss A. E. Musson (Northern Ireland), who had given very generously of their time and energy to the work of the Council, in many cases over a long period of years. This was passed with acclamation.

The Council then proceeded to the election of the honorary officers, and this resulted in the unanimous re-appointment of the present holders: Chairman, Miss D. S. Coode; Vice-Chairman, Miss B. Monk; Honorary Treasurers, Sir Comyns Berkeley, Dame Ellen Musson, Sir William Goodenough and Mr. Cameron Cobbold. The President, Miss M. F. Hughes, who took the chair for the election, proposed a warm vote of thanks to all the honorary officers for the heavy burdens that they had shouldered in the past, and were so generously undertaking again, mentioning particularly Miss Coode who, she felt, would like to have been released, but whose services they could so ill spare at this juncture.

Standing Committees Re-established

The Council next discussed the future conduct of its business, and decided that, now that the war in Europe had ended, the War Emergency Committee should be disbanded and the standing committees, Professional Association, Education, Finance, Establishment and General Purposes, Library and Branches Standing Committee be re-established. These committees were elected and the membership will be published as soon as the final details are settled.

Princess Elizabeth's Visit

The Council next congratulated the members of the Royal College of Nursing and other nurses whose names were included in the Birthday Honours List. The President also reported that Her Royal Highness, the Princess Elizabeth had graciously visited the Royal College of Nursing, on July 3, had declared the new Library of the Royal College of Nursing open and attended a meeting of the Student Nurses' Association of which she became President last year. The Chairman of the Association, Miss C. E. Bentley, conducted the proceedings very ably and members presented the Princess with a replica of their badge and a cheque for £2,500 to be donated to the Royal Navy for a mobile mass radiography unit. The Princess then had tea with representatives, talking to many of them and finally attended, with others, the film, "The Student Nurse," at the British Council's studio. The whole visit was a great success and the Council congratulated the staff on the arrangements made.

National Council Elections

The Chairman reported that a meeting of the National Council of Nurses of Great Britain had taken place and the following honorary officers had been elected: President, Dame Ellen Musson, D.B.E., R.R.C., LL.D., S.R.N.; Hon. Secretary, Miss Mary S. Cochrane, R.R.C., S.R.N.; Vice-Presidents, Miss Helen Dey, O.B.E., R.R.C., S.R.N.; Miss M. C. Marshall, R.G.N., R.R:C.; Miss Mildred F. Hughes, D.N. (Lond.) S.R.N.; Directors, Miss G. V. L. Hillyers, O.B.E., S.R.N.; Miss Emily E. P. MacManus, O.B.E., S.R.N.; Miss M. Sparkes, S.R.N.; Mrs. Woodman, S.R.N.; Miss Dorothy S. Coode, O.B.E., S.R.N.; Miss S. C. Bovill, S.R.N.; Hon. Treasurer, Miss Beatrice M. Monk, C.B.E., R.R.C., S.R.N.

The President gave a report of the Annual Meetings and Conference at Southport and proposed a special vote of thanks to Mrs. Turner, Branch Secretary, for her indefatigable work, and to the Conference Committee. Miss Hughes referred members to the Nursing Times for full reports of the various meetings and mentioned particularly the successful conference on "New Approaches to Mental Nursing" to which Dr. I. Skottowe and Miss L. L. Payne had made very valuable contributions. The Council decided, as a result of a recommendation from this meeting, to hold a similar conference in London and to invite members of the mental nursing profession, representatives of the mental hospitals, and of the appropriate organizations interested in the subject to attend. She also drew attention to the contributions made by Professor Davie, Dr. Fitzgerald, and Miss Laughlin, the Sister Tutor, Public Health and Student Nurses' meet respectively.

The Secretary reported that, among much correspond received, a letter from the Joint Committee of the Royal Coll of Physicians, of Surgeons, and of Gynaecologists and Obs tricians, announcing their full support of the principle that the of the title Christian Science Nurse was misleading, and suggest further co-operation between the Medical Colleges and the Ro College of Nursing in the future. The Association of Hosp Matrons had received a similar letter. A member had written suggesting that the Council should establish a fund help financially members of the College who wished to stand election to Parliament as did the British Medical Association the National Union of Teachers. The Council pointed out it had no such funds for this purpose and decided to take action. A letter from the Society of Registered Nurses concern war gratuities also received consideration.

P.M.R.A.F.N.S. Grants

The War Emergency Committee reported that, arising from action taken on the instructions of Council at its last meeti members of the Princess Mary's Royal Air Force Nursing Ser would in future receive War Service Grants like all other memb of the Royal Air Force and its auxiliary personnel.

Thanks for Hospitality

The Council passed a vote of special gratitude to Mrs. Bairstow, R.R.C., and to the hostesses associated with hospitality scheme; they had given 532 nurses accommodati in their homes during the Blitz and V-bomb attacks, and restbreaks in the intervening period when accommodation holidays had been so difficult to secure. This had proved valuable to the nurses concerned, and had resulted in the maki of many friendships. Now that the state of emergency had co to an end, the scheme would no longer function, and Coun asked the General Secretary to write to all those who had gi such highly appreciated help to the profession in the difficult d when this island was under constant attack.

The Education Committee reported that as a result of a furt approach, the Minister of Health had agreed to issue a circular local authorities encouraging them to send suitable nurses to ta a course to be arranged by the Royal College of Nursing Venereal Disease, and to pay the cost as part of the Venere Diseases Service, so that it would be covered by the Exchequ Grant available to maintain this. The Committee recommen to Council that the Correspondence Course in Industrial Nurs should be discontinued from January 1, 1946, as it was not entir satisfactory, and the three months' whole-time and part-ti courses be continued for a further year and then reviewed.

The Committee reported that Miss H. M. Field, trainee Cumberland Infirmary, had won the Cowdray Scholarship a also gave the names of the winners of the Hospital Savings Assoc tions' generous scholarships (see Nursing Times, July 14, pa 450.)

Public Health Conferences

The Public Health Section had held two group conferences, one in the western area at Gloucester and another in the eastern area at Headquarters. The Council agreed that the section should ask permission to present evidence to the Government Committee of Enquiry into the provisions made for the care of children deprived of normal home life. Council also agreed to work for the correction of the anomalies created by the Rushcliffe Nurses and Midwives Salaries Committees in connection with the salaries of the district nurse-midwife and the village nurse-midwife.

The Council acknowledged gratefully the donations of £10 : 10s. 0d. from Messrs. Pilkington Brothers, Ltd., and the Mutual Property Life and General Insurance Company Ltd., and of £10 : 0s. 0d. from the Stanton Iron Works Company Ltd. They also learnt with satisfaction that the Public Health Section, with representatives of the Women Public Health Officers' Association, were drawing up suitable standing orders for superintendent health visitors.

Agencies' Commission Rates

The Private Nurses' Section asked Council to approve a recommendation passed at their annual meeting concerning the commission to be charged to private nurses by employing agencies. The resolution was as follows : " That, when exercising the powers conferred upon them by the Nurses Act, 1943, in regard to the control of nurses supply agencies, local authorities be asked to require that the maximum rate of commission charged by supply agencies to nurses should in no case exceed 12½ per cent., but that 7½ per cent. still be regarded as the rate of commission most acceptable to the Royal College of Nursing."

Council discussed this in detail and Miss Wenden explained that whereas 7½ per cent. should be the maximum charge of large agencies employing 100 nurses or more, the figure was impracticable for the small provincial agency of under 50 nurses. The Council accepted the recommendation on these considerations. The Section also reported that the Section within the Northampton Branch had generously given a donation of £30 to the Bursary Fund.

Scottish Scholarships

The Scottish Board reported that four scholarships of £150 for the Scottish Sister Tutor Course had been awarded to : Miss A. E. S. Anderson, County and City of Perth Royal Infirmary; Miss W. M. Rattray, Dunfermline and West Fife Hospital, Dunfermline, and one £50 to : Miss E. M. Skaife, Elsie Inglis Maternity Hospital, Edinburgh.

Changes of Staff

The War Emergency Committee reported that Miss C. J. Mann had joined the staff as Industrial Organizer, and Miss Rowe had left to take up work in Europe. Miss M. F. Reidy, trainee of the Hospital of St. John and St. Elizabeth, and sister-in-charge of the Health Department, Vickers Armstrong, had been appointed Secretary to the Public Health Section, and Miss Westbury, trainee of the Radcliffe Infirmary, temporary assistant to the General Secretary. Miss Seligmann, superintendent Midwife and tutor, the County Hospital, Farnborough, was appointed tutor to the Midwife Teachers' Course.

The Student Nurses' Association reported the names of the newly elected members of Council (see the Nursing Times, June 23, page 411) and also the election of Miss C. E. Bentley, of the Royal Free Hospital, as chairman, and of Miss J. S. Bain, of Darlington Memorial Hospital, as vice-chairman of the Association. The Council agreed to award ten bursaries of £20 each to members, and asked the Student Nurses Representative Council to consider whether, since midwifery pupils paid no fees now and received a salary during their training, the use of bursaries for the purpose of taking this training should not be curtailed.

The Secretary reported that the following eminent visitors had made contact with headquarters recently : Miss Doherty, Principal Matron, R.A.A.F.N.S., Sir Frederick James of the Bhore Committee for India, Miss Hutchins, Nursing Advisor, Indian Medical Service and Colonel Chow, Head of the Chinese Military Nursing School. The Premier for New South Wales, Mr. McKell, was visiting this country, and was interested in nursing reconstruction.

The Council received with great appreciation a legacy of £500 in trust for the Nation's Fund for Nurses, and a legacy of £10 for the work of the Committee for Relief Abroad : both of these were from College members. The Council sanctioned a grant of £50 to a member taking the industrial nursing course, loans to three members taking post-certificate courses of training. During the last three months £950 10s. 0d. had been given to nurses from the Air Raid Victims Relief Funds : some new applications were still being received.

New Members

One hundred and forty-one new members were enrolled and five hundred and sixty-six new members of the Student Nurses' Association, of which two units had been formed.

Date of next meeting : September 20, at 2.15 p.m.

A NEW APPOINTMENT

Miss Frances Rowe, S.R.N., S.C.M., who has served as assistant to the General Secretary's office at the Royal College of Nursing for two and a half years and has been particularly concerned with the work of the Committee for Relief Abroad and the College register of applicants for relief work in Europe, has been appointed Principal Nursing Officer, Allied Control Commission for Austria, and will go abroad soon after a short holiday. Miss Rowe is a trainee of the Westminster Hospital, and came to the College from the Cassel Hospital for Functional Nervous Disorders, of which she was matron : she was previously assistant matron of the North Ormesby Hospital, Middlesbrough. Her many contacts with nurses from all the occupied countries of Europe during the last two and a half years, together with her previous experience, make her very well qualified for her new appointment, and we wish her happiness in her work.

Miss F. Rowe, S.R.N., S.C.M.

Tackling the Problem

COMPLAINTS as to shortage of nurses are becoming so much a matter of every-day occurrence that there is the danger, as with any chronic problem, of apathy being bred out of sheer familiarity. Manchester has its own urgent problems and its own plan for meeting them. The city has 300 cases awaiting admission. But for staffing difficulties, 400 civilian patients could be accommodated at once, but that would require 190 more nurses and a similar number of domestics. Dr. Metcalfe Brown, Manchester's M.O.H., has been working on a plan to deal with the shortage and has presented a report to a committee of the City Council which, if approved, will be sent to the Ministries of Health and Labour for possible adoption throughout the country. His recommendations show that he is regarding the needs of nurses not merely from the professional angle but from the wider, human aspect of their lives as women. The suggestions he makes are for improved pay, for halls of residence similar to those of university students run by a warden independent of the hospital, a qualified dietician to be responsible for nurses' and patients' food, the possibility of living out for qualified nurses and the relief of nurses from all non-nursing duties. He also makes the suggestion that the employment of married women, especially in administrative posts, would help towards understanding in dealing with the problems that arise in staffs including many young women.

Social Aspects of District Nursing—I.*

By E. J. MERRY, S.R.N., S.C.M.

DISTRICT Nursing has had an amazing growth! Eighty-six years ago in this City the first district nurse was appointed through the inspiration of Mr. Rathbone. To-day there are from 7 to 8,000 district nurses in Great Britain and Ireland employed by associations affiliated to the Queen's Institute of District Nursing. (And we must not forget the 12 Queen's nurses in the Channel Islands who have just been freed from enemy occupation). There are probably in addition about 900 nurses doing district work employed by associations that are not affiliated, for example, 80 Ranyard Mission nurses.

The British are accused of understatement; we have certainly been quiet about district nursing; it has very aptly been called the silent service. There are many to-day who have never heard of Queen's nurses; for example, there are doctors who think the district nurse only nurses the chronic and bedridden; there is the man in the street who thinks she only nurses the sick poor; there are some of her colleagues in and out of hospital who consider her only as a bedside nurse and do not recognize her as a teacher of health. We need to tell the public and professional colleagues what this service is.

In Canada

I have just come from Canada and the United States and have seen various district nursing services. The Canadian Victoria Order is known everywhere. It has the highest prestige with the public and with the profession. It is advertized in every way, with all the methods of commercial, skilled publicity, on the radio, in the press, and in magazines, with beautiful photography. It is a very fine order of district nurses, yet there are in the whole Dominion only 387 Victoria Order nurses and we have over 4,600 Queen's nurses and comparatively no publicity. We need some of that skilled publicity over here and I mean to begin here and now, though I speak largely to the converted, and the well-informed; my theme is that District Nursing should remain a voluntary service.

A Rising Tide

To consider the past: I suppose the Queen's Institute of District Nursing is one of the largest voluntary services in the country. There are 2,400 district nursing associations affiliated to the Queen's Institute (an increase of 62 associations affiliated since last year), now covering nearly the whole of Great Britain. Steadily, every year since 1859, the number of nursing associations and of nurses has increased, in spite of three wars, depressed years of unemployment and of poverty, an increase of hospital beds, and the establishment of health visitors, school nurses, factory nurses and other health services. Without advertisement, without legislation, or any obligation of the citizens to provide for district nursing, the service has swept the country like a tide. To-day 20 million visits are paid by district nurses in every corner of the United Kingdom. The district nurse is woven into the pattern of village life!

Why has this service grown? First and foremost, to use Mr. Churchill's words, largely because of the honest sweat and toil and skill of each individual district nurse. Secondly, because it is the kind of service the people want, it gives skilled attention, advice and help when they want it. The service has grown by the best type of advertisement; one satisfied consumer telling his neighbour what the district nurse did for him or for his wife or baby. Thirdly, because the people could not have better qualified nurses to attend them if they were millionaires, and because all are treated alike whether necessitous, working class or wealthy. District nursing used to be for the sick poor, and for many years now it has been for those who cannot afford a private nurse, but now it is also for those who cannot obtain a private nurse! Fourthly, because of all the voluntary hard work that has been put into the service all the local interest and goodwill that has been fostered by the work of local committees. Count up the number of voluntary workers in a County Nursing Association from all the local Associations and count the hours of work they spend. Compare it with the total numbers of County Councillors and the hours of work they could possibly spend on district nursing if this became one of their responsibilities, and they did not chose to use the voluntary services of these committees. Neither patients nor our nurses can afford to lose the labour of these voluntary workers.

Fifthly, the most dramatic growth of district nursing has been with the development of Home Nursing Provident Schemes, where a weekly contribution of 1d. or 2d. has insured the whole family for free district nursing when needed. Where this method has been adopted, calls for nursing service have doubled and redoubled, funds have increased, more nurses have been obtained, and better conditions provided for them. The principle of insurance for home nursing has been well accepted by the public and has lifted it from any stigma of charity.

Creative Work

How is it that Queen's nursing has attracted so many State-registered nurses in these days of serious shortage of nurse-power? It is true we need many more to make a full service, but we have up to 500 and 600 State-registered nurses entering yearly for Queen's training, and for work as district nurses afterwards. What attracts them to the service? It is not the salary, which though improved since the Rushcliffe report, is still the lowest of those in the public health service. Even the school nurse with no additional certificate and every week-end free is awarded £40 a year more than the Queen's district nurse! It is not the hours of work that attract nurses to district work. The hours are not excessive, usually under 48 per week, but the duty is broken; it is usually morning and evening work because that seems best for ill patients and for midwifery cases, and there is Sunday work on most Sundays. It is not the easiness of the work, for it is often sad, heavy and weatherbeating. It is not the glamour of the uniform! What is it then, that keeps nurses "on the district"? I believe it is a real interest in human beings, and a social flair that attracts many Queen's nurses. There is something creative, too, in seeing what can be done with the raw material of life, in spite of poverty, and ignorance in all classes of life, and of shiftlessness. I think young nurses of to-day like tackling something tough even if it requires the giving up of leisure at times.

Those of us who are in administrative positions are continually trying to improve conditions for district nurses. But, however much easier conditions are made, district nursing will always require vocational qualities for the job itself, and a wide social outlook.

Another factor which seems to att Queen's nurses and keep them in the serv is the fact that they belong to a great nati organization; for as Queen's nurses there negotiating body at Headquarters to pr their interests.

Queen's nurses enjoy the visits of h quarters' Queen's Inspectors. Canada and States thought the name inspector very they use the names advisor, consul councillor. Certainly the Queen's nurses their inspectors as councillors and consult knowing they have "carried the bag" th selves and can exchange ideas with them think it worth pointing out that it is largely to the regular supervision of the ser by Headquarters' inspectors and by the h superintendents, that the standard of car the patients remains so high; that the eq ment, records, and working conditions ar uniformly good. All through her working a Queen's nurse is visited by her inspecto her superintendent every six months. patients are visited together, her wor conditions considered, problems discussed the nurse's plans for further develop encouraged.

Could we be sure of the same high stand all over the country if each local authority its own standard of work? It there a formly high standard of school nursing health visiting in every borough? I think system of inspection every six months throu out the year, and every nine months dur this war, is a very great achievement.

Variety and Vocation

The variety of work which Queen's nur can undertake on the district is anot attraction. They can chose town or vill to live alone or in a group, they can ch England, Scotland, Ireland or Wales and remain in the service. With the actual w we find recruitment is easy in those cou where the nurse does the complete progra of midwifery and health visiting of the w family, as well as the district nursing of villages. This attracts a very fine type socially-minded nurse.

Other good nurses, whose interest primarily nursing and who perhaps are social missionaries, prefer city life. Recr ment is most difficult of all in those c where the nurse has little variety of dis nursing. Local authorities can help a g deal, if they want to encourage and att Queen's nurses to their areas, by referring nursing cases to the nursing associa established for that purpose, rather t using their own public health nurses bedside nursing work.

District Midwives

Before leaving the past achievements district nursing, I must mention the wor Queen's nurse-midwives and of district m wives all over-the country. No words I say are too high to praise the work the for our mothers and babies. In Canada the States I have seen a little of what it m to have no midwives. There, in most of populated areas, 98 per cent. are delivere hospitals by doctors and it is a rare thin find a breast-fed baby. The contribu that our midwives make, in their fait care of mothers, waiting upon nature normal delivery, and their zeal to pro breast feeding, must be one of the gre factors in maternity and child welfare. As 85,150 cases delivered by midwives atta to the Queen's Institute during 1944, the figure of maternal mortality is barely 1 1,000, the lowest on record, and there increase of 694 cases born at home!

So much for the past; what of the futu district nursing? It can play an even gre part in the health and welfare of the fu and I think every district nursing associa and nurse is anxious to assist in its deve ment. We have passed the Victorian era when district nursing was a purely philanthropic service for the poor only. We have reached a more independent stage, the individual providing for himself through National health insurance and the voluntary home nursing contributory schemes. What of future legislation? We wait and see. Will it be a Beveridge plan, one stamp for all services from the womb to the tomb; for the rich and the poor? Or will it be a Complete Health plan with the local authority service to include district nursing? It will not of course be free, but it may appear free. I do not believe that district nursing would flourish and develop and be used by the people (which is our aim), if it should become a free service for all. There is a certain suspicion about something that is free, and it usually means filling in a few more forms!

Professional Secrecy

District nursing is a more intimate service than some of the other health services. It needs great professional secrecy and often delicate handling and is not suitable for clerks to deal with. I believe that both patients and doctors would use the service much more freely if they could apply to it privately from the voluntary nursing association rather than to the Town Hall or official agency. I believe that patients would rather feel they were making some contribution to district nursing whether in a voluntary home nursing scheme or a Beveridge plan, than receive the service from rates and taxes. The needy have always been nursed free, the wealthy prefer to pay for it.

What is the future scope of district nursing? It is doing a fine job now, but will it rise to the challenge of providing a much fuller service? A 24 hour service has been mentioned, so has night nursing, and prolonged care for three or four hours at a time; should we need assistant nurses further? We may be very glad for this extra care. Should we not teach about physical care for the aged, who are more feeble than sick? Student nurses should be given experience in district nursing in hospital, so that they will understand how their patients live at home, and see the scope of district nursing. All these services are needed and have been suggested as future developments of district nursing here.

The Victorian Order

I have seen in Canada, with the Victorian Order of Nurses, and in New York, at Henry Street and in other nursing associations, most interesting developments of district nursing. In no place is their service so fully developed as ours; there is a great population per nurse, and they have not touched the rural areas, as distances are so great. Nevertheless, they have a very fine service and are more elastic, aiming at wider developments according to the local need. I have seen part-time factory nursing done by a district nurse who spent one or two hours each morning in the small factory, unable to employ a full time factory nurse.

Orthopaedic nursing, a massage service, which is really rehabilitation in all its forms for the crippled or temporarily disabled, was carried on with one expert consultant on the staff, and the district nurses following up the cases on the district, to hasten recovery. There were nutrition teaching services for families, groups and individual district patients, again with one dietitian on the district nursing staff. Many of these wider duties were in the experimental stage, others well established. All were voluntarily maintained.

One interesting development in New York is that when the official local authority builds a health centre, it builds also two or three rooms to house the local district nursing association offices, but leaves all the administration to the voluntary association, simply providing for them rent free, looking upon them as part of the city's health service, and the City as a landlord only!

It is a tradition in most countries, I believe, that all pioneer movements start as voluntary concerns. District nursing in Great Britain has passed the pioneer stage, but it has still much to do, in its wider developments. If it is to expand and give the fullest service to the people, it can, in my opinion, only do so if it remains a voluntary association, free to explore and experiment, and by trial and error to evolve the best system for the needs of the people.

I think you will agree that there has always been a certain tug of war, usually a friendly one, between the State and the voluntary systems. At one end of the rope the municipal hospitals, the medical officer of health and the public health staff; at the other end the voluntary hospitals, the general practitioners and the district nursing association. Sometimes one side is weighted by high salaries and power and the other by prestige and individual freedom. The tug of war is often to do with money and lack of money. In future health services let us hope that neither side will be hampered in doing the job by lack of money, and that public money for all public work, including district nursing, will be forthcoming.

Then, instead of a tug of war between state and voluntary organizations, might we not hope rather for a team? But whether all is said and done in the future by County Councils or by nursing committees, the key person upon whom the whole quality of district nursing depends is the nurse herself!

It is of the district nurse that Florence Horsborough spoke in Parliament recently when she said—"that neither bombs, nor storms, nor rain, nor anything else would keep her from reaching the homes of her people."

in industry, who must think out the detailed, intricate arrangements necessary. Personally, from my experience of the personnel on both sides of this proposed arrangement, they are fully capable of achieving this difficult task. Here and there some degree of compulsion will probably be necessary and this could be forthcoming through the Disabled Persons (Employment) Act, 1944, which, though law, will not come into operation pending the making of an Order in Council. Section 15 of this Act gives power to the Minister of Labour to provide facilities for the employment of tuberculous or other disabled persons under special conditions. All of us should keep this section well in the foreground and constantly publicize it, for more than any past legislation it may help to bring fresh hope to those stricken with tuberculosis.

There remains the question of isolation of the case who is still infectious though fit for work. This is a more common situation than is often realized. I know two doctors, for example, who are in full-time work (one a general practitioner) who for years have had a positive sputum. Should they be allowed to work? In my opinion they certainly should. What we need for people with a positive sputum is an assurance from some responsible doctor (the Tuberculosis Officer appears to fill the need) that they are trained in personal hygiene and have given evidence while under observation in an institution that they can be employed with other workers without danger. If we are going to insist on sputum negative tests we are going to incur difficulties of standardisation of tests, and many others that I have not space to enlarge on. There will for awhile be people who are not fit to receive a personal hygiene certificate and these must either work in special shops or be maintained without working. In any event there are not many who cannot be trained to be safe. It is the untrained and often unaware case that is such a danger to-day.

Lastly, I would warn you that the control of tuberculosis, which I firmly believe to be well within the powers of society, will be a costly business. Many more radiographers, doctors, nurses and institutional beds will be needed and for many years yet. Certain financiers will point out from time to time that a great deal is being spent and ask—where is the dividend? Well, in the past, too many of the tuberculous have just died, often within a few months of diagnosis. Thompson has shown that in Durham only one in five of the positive sputum cases was alive five years after being discovered. Many of these deaths can without doubt be put off indefinitely or for many years. Though it may be cheaper to let the sick die or even hasten their death—that was the Nazi view—it appears to me that one of the acid tests of civilization is that we care for the aged and the sick to the very best of our ability.

Health as News

Sir Wilson Jameson, K.C.B., Chief Medical Officer, Ministry of Health, spoke at the Annual meeting of the Charity Organization Society recently. He gave a brief outline of the democratic way in which the National Health Service was being evolved and stressed the need for it to be based on family units receiving advice from the doctor on health. The doctor would not wait until illness occurred to make the families acquaintance. In some districts, no doubt, health centres which might facilitate nursing and secretarial assistance would be tried but there would always be a free choice of doctor and there was no truth in the idea of plans for eight hour days for doctors with hours of work arranged by rota. Sir Wilson spoke of the improvement in the nation's health in spite of the hard trials of war. There were signs that even the increased incidence of venereal diseases had reached its peak for amongst those going to centres for investigation, the uninfected outnumbered the infected. Tuberculosis was still a great problem; since the low level of deaths in 1942, there had been an increase both in deaths and new cases. Commenting on the position with regard to disease and the new health services, Sir Wilson Jameson concluded, "In the future, we need most of all a sound publicity on matters of health. Health has been news during the war. Let us try to hold on to this. We shall need all the help we can get and not the least will be from the social worker who is in daily contact with the large mass of the population."

Correspondence

For Sick Children's Welfare

The articles written on Paediatrics by Mr. Ernest Hadley and others, are, I feel strongly, a challenge to all doctors and nurses who are devoting their energies to the care of the sick child. I am a nursing sister in a children's hospital, and write from experience, having taken a training in sick children's nursing after my general training.

I found that two years training, demanded for general trained nurses, was not at all too long a period to gain sufficient knowledge in handling sick children, and to carry out one's duties efficiently. I decided to take my children's training, when, during my general training, I was given the responsible position of night staff nurse in the childrens' ward. I realized at once, how hopelessly inefficient and unsuitable it was to nurse sick children in a general hospital—the only person capable of nursing these children was the ward sister, a Registered Sick Children's Nurse, on whom the responsibility lay heavily. I found, too, that the doctors were deplorably inefficient, and inexperienced.

Mr. Ernest Hadley suggests the nursing of sick children should become post-certificate work. This would indeed be a very serious mistake. The pyschological aspect is a most important factor, anyone having had lengthy experience with sick children will, I am sure, agree with me, that the handling of and approach to these little people is of vital importance; a child reacts spontaneously to a nurse or doctor who is experienced with good results in his progress; therefore, it is only by having this lengthy experience in the handling of and approach to children that this very important factor may be acquired.

Sick children change insiduously, and it is only the experienced nurse, (who has been taught how to observe, and watch for the least change, which may end so disastrously, if not dealt with immediately), is capable of this vital work. The sick children's nurse receives a good all round basic training in medical and surgical nursing, including all the special departments.

The trained sick children's nurse is in a position to reverse the table, and take her general training as a post certificate course, if she so desires to leave the children. Why not? I think all doctors and nurses who have the welfare of the sick child at heart should wage a war for victory over these sadly inexperienced people, who continue to write articles degrading the status of a very fine training, which demands an extremely high standard, skill, and much patience.

The slight knowledge of the sick child a nurse receives in a general hospital is to be deplored. Children's cots should be removed from all general hospitals and brought into the children's hospitals, and more children's hospitals should be built; it is in these buildings the children, our men and women of the future, will receive the very best attention.

Sex Equality

How unique and refreshing to read of an appeal for equality with women—and from a man! I am referring to the letter written by Mr. Worsfold, assistant tutor of the Nottingham City Hospital, in your issue of June 23. I note that his pleas are for equality of opportunity, and one can only heartily endorse his views when one realizes the contribution that male nurses make to the sick and suffering, a contribution which could be increased tenfold if greater encouragement were given to male nurses.

The profession should not be the monopoly of women. There should be equality of opportunity for men in the nursing profession as there should be equality of opportunity for women in other professions. As women have been fighting for years for full equality of opportunity—and are still fighting, I am afraid that the men will have to continue to fight for this; admittedly there is a lot of sex prejudice to be overcome, and men are very indignant when they find it directed at themselves! Fortunately they will be able to concentrate on this issue alone and not have to couple with their efforts a fight for equal pay. An entirely male panel of employers on the Rushcliffe Committee has granted male nurses salary scales above female nurses.

Will Mr. Worsfold answer publicly this question? In the event of the men gaining equality of opportunity, are they prepared to fight, not just utter pious platitudes, but fight with their women colleagues on this question of equal pay for nurses? Remember, the men in the medical profession demanded, and got, equal pay for women doctors—in their own interests primarily, of course.

Let us see if the men's call for equality in the nursing profession is sincere and genuine; meanwhile, you cannot blame us women if we sit back and have a quiet chuckle over these very refreshing cries for equality from men. We will help you to get your equality of opportunity if you help us to get equal pay.

Too Stiff

Concerning your leader of July 21. I was for some time at a hospital where the assistant nurses' training scheme was started and I thought then that, for girls who were obviously not well educated, a good deal of anatomy and physiology had to be learned. Elementary it may have been considered by those who set the syllabus, but it was too much for some intelligences, while the few who found no difficulty were types who, I am sure, could have succeeded in general training had they attempted it.

As suggested in the Nursing Times leader it has become easy enough for all sorts to enter for general training, due doubtless to the desperate need for nurses. It would seem few thinking girls will choose the assistant nurses' training with its, perhaps, more monotonous work, less dramatic experiences and ultimate lower status. But I should have thought that these assistants with a shorter theoretical training, less anatomy and physiology, might be more on the lines of orderlies; they could do very useful work with one trained person on duty to whom they might turn, which is no more than the present assistant-nurse requires.

'READER.'

"By any other Name"

Is the name the cause of the lack of recruitment for assistant nurse training? Two years hard training to become merely an "assistant" is not good enough. A shop assistant starts as such and has free evenings and week-ends.

To London Branch Members

Members of the London Branch of the Royal College of Nursing will learn with much regret that Miss Fletcher, who has been secretary of the London Branch for 16 years, is retiring.

We are glad for her sake that the time has come for her to go to her "cottage in the country" for a well-earned rest, but she will be sadly missed by a very large number of nurses who will remember her for the kind welcome she always gave to them at the Branch Office and for her readiness to help them in a number of ways.

I am sure it will be the desire of all the members to wish her good health and peace in her retirement. We also want to interpret this desire in some tangible form, and the Honorary Treasurer of the London Bra will be glad to receive donations with object.

Letters should be addressed to: The H Treasurer, London Branch, Royal Colleg Nursing, Henrietta Place, Cavendish Squ London, W.1.

NURSES' APPEAL FOR NURSES

Nation's Fund for Nurses

Apart from the weather, the most usual topic of conversation just now is holidays . . . "When are you going ?" or "How did you enjoy it ?" and, judging from the crowds on the railway stations, there are not many people who cannot answer both those questions. We do know some nurses who, though past work, would be only too glad to join the holiday crowds if only they had a few pounds in their pockets. We all need a change of scene and atmosphere after these weary war years, and we do not want our elderly nurses to be the ones to be left out. Please send us some "Holiday" donations.

At the Dreadnought Hospital

Before a large gathering of Dreadnought nurses past and present, from all parts of the country, Lady Kennedy-Purvis presented the Bernhard Baron gold and silver medals and other prizes to this year's winners.

Lady Kennedy-Purvis, who was accompanied by Admiral Charles Kennedy-Purvis, Deputy First Sea Lord, was received by Captain Sir Ion Hamilton Benn, Chairman of the Committee of Management of the Seamen's Hospital Society, and the guests included Sir Frederick and Lady Young, Mr. J. C. Nairne, Mr. F. S. A. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Rowbottom, Commander the Hon. David and Mrs. Edwardes and Miss E. M. French, Superintendent, W.R.N.S., O.T.C.

Sir Ion Hamilton Benn recalled that, in spite of heavy damage during the air raids, the Dreadnought Hospital had never had to close its doors entirely to seamen of the Merchant Navy and the fleets of the Allied Navies. Those who worked in the Seamen's Hospitals realized that the war was not over for the Merchant Navy, which was still engaged upon its hard and dangerous task of supplying our forces in the Far East. After paying tribute to the unfailing devotion of the nursing staff throughout the last five years, Sir Ion said he felt confident that they would face with equal cheerfulness and loyalty the difficult period of "make do and mend" before their hospital could finally be rebuilt.

The prize-winners were:—Gold Medal—Miss Hilda Laws, S.R.N.; Silver Medal—Miss Winifred Low, S.R.N.; Third year prizes—Miss Esther Fuller, S.R.N., and Miss Muriel Parr, S.R.N.; Second year prize—Miss Mary Gray and Miss Katherine Wilkins; First year prize—Miss Kathleen Nixon.

Prizegiving at Tunbridge Wells

The preliminary training school at the County Hospital, Pembury, Tunbridge Wells, gave a very enjoyable "Breaking-Up Party" in the Nurses' Home on June 20, when the student nurses enacted a concert produced entirely by themselves before an appreciative audience of parents and friends, sisters of the hospital and a number of girls interested in nursing from the local secondary schools. After an address from matron and a report from sister tutor, Mrs. Stocken, secretary of the Student Nurses' Association, spoke of the many-sided work of the Royal College of Nursing.

The prizes were presented by Mrs. Spurrell, chairman of the hospital committee, to the following students:—

First nurse in the school.—Miss K. O'Keeffe. Proxime accessit.—Miss M. Sexton. Best "all-round" nurse.—Miss B. Pilcher. First in hospital entrance examinations. — Miss P. Wiltshire. Greatest progress made during term.—Miss S. Young.

A most successful afternoon concluded with a vote of thanks from Miss Doreen Pitts, the prefect of the school, to all who had contributed towards making their initiation to the profession so thoroughly enjoyable.

"My nerves were getting terrible" . . .

Do you know what it's like to have your nerves so jumpy, you can't sleep, can't work and simply want to shriek if anyone slams a door?

That's what I was. Life was getting impossible. Then I read about Anti-Kamnia. It's quite astonishing the difference those little tablets have made. I'm working just as hard but I'm sleeping like a top and nothing seems to worry me now. One great thing about A.K. is that it has no after effects. It is an absolutely unique formula for headaches, migraine and all nerve troubles or pains. Any chemist can give you A.K. and if you aren't delighted with what it does, he'll give you your money back. Try a packet to-day. 1/5 a box (including tax).

Increase protein intake with Bemax

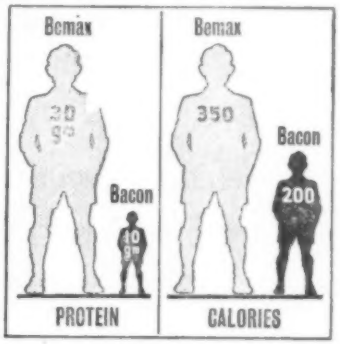
So accustomed have we become to thinking of Bemax mainly as a rich natural source of vitamin B that its high protein content is not always fully appreciated.

For example: there was some surprise at the recent statement that a daily tablespoonful of Bemax will more than make up for the loss of protein consequent on the reduction in the bacon ration.

Yet such is the case. Against the 10 grammes of first-class protein provided by a week's bacon ration, the daily tablespoonful of Bemax yields upwards of 30 grammes of first-class protein in a week. In pregnancy especially, this is important.

For those who are able to supplement their diet with Bemax no lowering of the protein intake need occur.

A comparison in terms of calories is also in favour of Bemax as shown in the diagram.



1 oz. of BEMAX provides :—

Vitamin B_1	0.45 mg.	Iron	2.7 mg.
Vitamin B_2 (Riboflavin)	0.3 mg.	Copper	0.45 mg.
Nicotinic Acid	1.7 mg.	Protein	30%
Vitamin B_6	0.45 mg.	Available Carbohydrate	39%
Vitamin E	8.0 mg.	Fibre	2%
Manganese	4.0 mg.	Calorific Value	104

DIPHENAN B.D.H.

For the Treatment of Threadworm Infestation

Diphenan is the most active anthelmintic against threadworms so far introduced. It quickly eliminates the parasites, and, provided adequate precautions are taken against re-infestation from ingestion of eggs towards the end of a course, treatment is effective and apparent failure due to early re-infestation is unlikely.

Despite its great activity, diphenan is virtually non-toxic.

Diphenan B.D.H. is an exceptionally pure product, and its efficacy and non-toxicity are assured.

Treatment with Diphenan B.D.H. is characterised by the following advantages—

1 The drug employed is colourless and practically tasteless
2 No nausea, vomiting or visual disturbances are to be anticipated
3 Treatment is of relatively short duration

Details of dosage and other relevant information will be gladly supplied on request.
